The term "staking" refers to depositing digital assets in one or several nodes of a blockchain network, which enables such nodes to participate in the functioning of said network. Users who "stake" their assets receive rewards from the network during the period in which their assets are staked in the described fashion.

The Service facilitates staking SOL cryptocurrency to validators of the Solana network. A smart strategy is used aiming to maximize both the user's rewards and the network's performance.

The Service does not store your digital assets nor your keys, and does not in any way provide a custodian service.

By using this service, you acknowledge that the Service can neither guarantee nor influence the rewards issued by the Solana network, as well as the future price of your digital assets. We do not accept any responsibility for the dynamics of SOL price, delegation and/or validation rewards, and the future of cryptocurrency in general.
